HOW TO BECOME AN ALCOR MEMBER

ALCOR NEWS LETTER CANCELLATION ANNOUNCEMENT

Dear AlcorNews Subscribers;

We are proud to announce that the Alcor Cryonics magazine is now published 12 times a year. Until further notice, we no longer see the need to continue emailing the Alcor News letter.

Cryonics magazine is complimentary for Alcor members and NOW this offer has been extended to included Alcor News subscribers. You can view the magazine online or to receive a hard copy in the mail simply email me your name and mailing address at dbora@alcor.org.

The January 2013 issue of Cryonics magazine contains a detailed report of our successful 2012 Alcor-40 conference, including a summary of the presentations of all speakers. This issue features an extensive review of chemopreservation as an alternative to cryopreservation by Cryonics magazine editor Aschwin de Wolf. Among the topics discussed is the necessity of functional assays to evaluate progress in preservation methods and the advantages and disadvantages of both methods when they are practiced under non-ideal (ischemic) conditions. This issue also reports on Alcor's use of CT scans for detecting cryoprotectant distribution and ice formation.
