Welcome to our new Medical Response Director

Blake Honiotes, BSN, RN, CCRN

Blake Honiotes joined the team in December of 2019 as the Medical Response Director. He brings many years of trauma and cardiovascular critical care nursing experience to Alcor. Prior to coming to Alcor Blake was employed at Honor Health as a nursing trauma supervisor. He holds a Bachelor's Degree in Sociology from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, as well as a Bachelor's Degree in Nursing from Lewis University. Blake has his Critical Care Nursing certification through the American Association of Critical Care Nursing (AACN) and his Trauma Nursing certification through Advanced Trauma Care for Nurses (ATCN).

Alcor and ICE Focus on Patient Outcomes

by Patrick Harris, COO

Alcor is pleased to announce its new strategic agreement with International Cryomedicine Experts, LLC ("ICE") to support Standby, Stabilization, and Transport for Alcor members/patients.

Alcor's new agreement with ICE focuses on improving the quality of outcomes for patients. "The new ICE agreement is modeled after pay-for-performance, also known as P4P, in the healthcare industry. Over the last decade, healthcare and payer organizations have successfully transitioned away from fee for service and utilized P4P agreements to incentivize providers to improve care," said Patrick Harris, Chief Operating Officer at Alcor.

Eric Vogt, Co-Founder at ICE said, "We are excited about the renewed opportunity to provide Alcor members with the highest level of care in standby, stabilization, and transportation. Our founding members have been working with Alcor since 2009 and appreciate Alcor having renewed its faith in our mutually beneficial relationship."

ICE looks forward to growing along with Alcor and its membership in the coming years. We aim to help extend Alcor's reach both geographically to the global cryonics market, and technologically via Field Cryopreservation to overcome time and geographical challenges."

About International Cryomedicine Experts, LLC ("ICE")

International Cryomedicine Experts (ICE) provides standby, stabilization, and transportation (SST) to the cryonics community. Our founders have over 18 years of combined experience in the field of Cryonics. Our team members, located throughout the contiguous United States and Hawaii, have participated in over 100 cases combined. ICE was created to serve all cryonicists while specializing in serving the needs of its remote and international clients.
